Nothing But Words

Iranian-born, American-based artist Ramin Shirdel presents 'I Am Transforming Into You' this month at the Sophia Contemporary Gallery in London. Shirdel first studied as an architect, and in this series of sculptures at the Sophia Contemporary, you can plainly see elements of his previous training. Large-scale free-standing and wall-hanging sculptures are made up of several layers – a technique he first developed when designing buildings – that eventually form words in Farsi and English. The series is a study in language, iconography, the meaning words have in different cultures and our own emotional attachment to certain words. 'I Am Transforming Into You' ends this month on 22 September.
