

'Shifting Landscapes' at Sophia Contemporary, London

07/04 08:45 - 'Shifting Landscapes' at Sophia Contemporary, London

Sophia Contemporary, London is set to showcase the works of six contemporary American artists in a group show titled "Shifting Landscapes," which will begin on April 28 and run through June 23, 2017. The six featured artists — Afroz Amighi, Iva Gueorguieva, Herman Mejia, Amir Nikravan, Holton Rower and Hannah Whitaker — explore abstraction through sculpture, painting and photography in the exhibition that reflects on the evolving nature of American art. Issues of contemporaneity, materiality and historic legacy in a post-modern world unite the artists exhibited despite their differing artistic strategies and points of references. On a broader cultural level, the exhibition examines the multicultural nature of America at a time of division and isolation within the country. "Shifting Landscapes" will be on view at Sophia Contemporary, 11 Grosvenor Street, Mayfair, London, W1K 4QB, UK.
